Drawings

The drawings are objected to under 37 CFR 1.83(a). The drawings must show every feature of the invention specified in the claims. Therefore, the 10 degree inclination as now claimed must be shown or the feature canceled from the claims. No new matter should be entered.

Corrected drawing sheets in compliance with 37 CFR 1.121(d) are required in reply to the Office action to avoid abandonment of the application. Any amended replacement drawing sheet should include all of the figures appearing on the immediate prior version of the sheet, even if only one figure is being amended. The figure or figure number of an amended drawing should not be labeled as "amended." If a drawing figure is to be canceled, the appropriate figure must be removed from the replacement sheet, and where necessary, the remaining figures must be renumbered and appropriate changes made to the brief description of the several views of the drawings for consistency. Additional replacement sheets may be necessary to show the renumbering of the remaining figures. Each drawing sheet submitted after the filing date of an application must be labeled in the top margin as either "Replacement Sheet" or "New Sheet" pursuant to 37 CFR 1.121(d). If the changes are not accepted by the examiner, the applicant will be notified and informed of any required corrective action in the next Office action. The objection to the drawings will not be held in abeyance.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 1-4 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Froehlich (US 4,983,083). Froehlich discloses a fixing device comprising an anchoring bolt (4) having a fixing means (5) and a widening anchoring zone (8); a covering (9) made of silicone-containing plastic ("polysiloxan" column 3, line 11), smaller than the widening anchoring zone and; a curable composition (3). Since the claims are claims are directed to "[a] fixing device" the correspondence with an undercut portion of a drilled hole is an intended use of which Froehlich would be capable and the covering material would provide at least some flexibility. The reference to Froehlich meets the limitation of the anchor bolt being able to incline about 10 degrees for two reasons: first, the limitation is an intended use and with adequate force, the anchoring bolt would be able to be inclined about 10 degrees and second, there is no reference for what the 10 degrees is relative to so the entire structure of Froehlich could be inclined 10 degrees to meet the limitation.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 5-9 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Froehlich in view of Kellison (US 4,642,964). As discussed above, Froehlich discloses an anchoring device but, does not disclose the device within an undercut hole. Kellison discloses a similar device and further teaches the substitution of straight hole (panel 14) and an undercut hole (panel 114). At the time the invention was made, it would have been obvious for one of ordinary skill in the art to substitute a undercut hole for the straight hole in Froehlich and taught in Kellison because its obvious to substitute one known element for another when the results are predictable. MPEP 2143.

Response to Remarks

Applicant argues that the claims define over Froehlich because in Froehlich the covering material is for preventing adhesion which does not suggest the degree of resistance of the present invention. In response, the examiner agrees with applicant's understanding of Froehlich but, maintains the reference continues to anticipate the claims for the reasons as set forth above. Generally, the limitations relied on to define over Froehlich are functional limitation so, as a suggestion, applicant should consider claiming the structure which facilitates the function which in this case appears to be combination of the thickness of the cover and its axial length.
